WHY THIS BOOK EXISTS

Why most Red-Eared Sliders don't make it past year three

Not from a bad owner. Not from bad luck. From advice that was never built for where you live.

Every RES care guide online was written for a US or UK owner. Different climate. Different products. Different prices. You've been guessing how any of it applies to a turtle living in a Bengaluru apartment, or surviving a Delhi winter.

This book was built differently — for Indian owners, at every budget, from day one.

This is a preview. It shows you what's inside — not everything that's inside.

WHAT'S INSIDE

9 chapters. 106 pages. One country in mind.

- 01 Tank size — the truth no pet store tells you
- 02 Filtration — the nitrogen cycle, without the jargon
- 03 Three complete budget builds: ₹1,000 · ₹5,000 · ₹10,000
- 04 Lighting & UVB — done right the first time
- 05 Heating — city-by-city, not one-size-fits-all
- 06 Water quality — the honest no-filter protocol
- 07 Substrate, plants & decor that won't hurt your turtle
- 08 Troubleshooting — algae, smell, cloudy water, and more
- 09 The Quick-Reference system — checklists, red flags, and a tank upgrade calculator you'll use for years

Must know

Most competing guides run 76–130 pages of generic advice. This one runs 106 pages of advice built for exactly where you live.

Three complete budget builds

No filter → frequent partial water changes and close water-quality monitoring

No dedicated UVB → supervised access to genuine, unfiltered outdoor sunlight can provide UVB temporarily, but this is not a permanent substitute for a properly positioned UVB lamp

No permanent water-heating system → monitor water temperature closely and add a thermostatically controlled heater whenever the water cannot remain within the appropriate range

No biological cycle → waste management and water changes must be much more frequent until proper filtration is established

⚠️ RED FLAGS — SEE A REPTILE VET

None of these are "wait and see." Book a vet visit.

- ☐ Not eating for more than 3-5 days (with water/temp otherwise correct)
- ☐ Swollen or closed eyes, or puffy face
- ☐ Discharge from nose, mouth or eyes

+ 8 MORE RED FLAGS IN THE FULL BOOK

Plus: daily & weekly maintenance checklists, a new-turtle first-7-days protocol, a tank upgrade calculator with growth timeline, and a power-outage emergency protocol.

All ten reference pages are in the complete book.

This preview shows the shape of each reference page — the full detail (all items, all boxes) is what you're actually buying.

BUILT FOR WHERE YOU LIVE

Built for where you actually live

- City-by-city heating guidance — not "keep it warm."
- Real Amazon.in and Flipkart pricing — not USD converted badly.
- D-Mart, local aquarium shops, and Indian brand names — not imported product names you can't find here.
- Water treatment guidance for Indian tap water, including chloramine — not a US-only chlorine explanation.

No other Red-Eared Slider guide does this.

INDIA TIP

This entire book was fact-checked against India-specific conditions, not adapted from a US guide after the fact.

This book is for you if:

- You already have a Red-Eared Slider and want to get the setup right, not just functional
- You're about to bring one home and don't want to learn through your turtle's mistakes
- You've read conflicting advice online and want one source that's actually consistent
- You want to spend money once, on the right equipment — not twice, after buying the wrong thing first

If any of that sounds like you, the full book is ready.
